Lifelong Learning Programme

The main aim of the Build Your English proposal is to enable young people and construction workers to gain more technical English language skills. To achieve this, the proposal includes the following objectives:

- to create a suitable training methodology to support the use of the software, including pictures, voices, animations and 3D graphics
- to create computer application/software enabling users self-learning of technical English language
- to enhance technical English language skills for communication on building sites and day to day operations
- to enhance Health and Safety performance through improved communication between construction personnel
- to enhance the mobility of labour force in European Union

Some details:

- creating interactive training materials enable users easier and faster self-learning methods. These materials will include: short movies, animations, dialogs, listenings, writing exercises etc.
- creating additional materials with guidelines for teachers/tutors
- create a suitable training methodology to support the use of the software, including pictures, voices, animations, and 3D graphic - the project beneficiaries are mostly young people

Project target group:

- construction schools students
- construction workers
- English language teachers
- non-qualified workers who want to improve their technical English language skills

It is assumed that beneficiaries have some basic language abilities. For example: the ability to understand short passages of spoken English or the ability to ask or answer to questions.
